

THURSDAY EVENING, NOV. 1, 1900.

The republican party is nothing if it is not a negro party. In the President's own State of Ohio mixed schools for white and black children of both sexes are the law. Does any man doubt that the President is in favor of it? When has he ever said one word against it? It is a republican State. The extent and the purpose of such intermingling of races, is to do away with the just prejudice that separates the races and to bring about miscegenation. In New York a similar law exists, passed lately by a republican legislature under the demand and insistence of Governor Roosevelt. The Governor, now the republican candidate for Vice President, declared that "the laws of the State should no longer tolerate race or color distinctions." He boasted that his own son had sat alongside a negro child at school. If the son was like the father, the negro boy would be the one to suffer most by the association; but for the white children of decent parents it would be a degradation. Roosevelt is now on the stump proclaiming these ideas. The other day, speaking at Ithaca, he defended the practice of associating white and negro youths at college. All this is interspersed with his copious vocabulary of blackguardism and mendacity. It is well he is on the stump. He is a fit representative of the republican leaders.

While there is no doubt of the fact that with few wise and honorable exceptions all the moneyed men of the country, South as well as North, favor the election of Mr. McKinley, notwithstanding his support of the force bill, of negro officials in the South and of unnecessary foreign wars, and that the whole weight of the administration, legislative, judicial and executive, is thrown that way, and that every conceivable means has been and will be resorted to by which suffrage may be debauched by intimidation or money, the hope of the real friends of the country is strong in the great national democratic party and in the manliness and independence of freemen, honest white American voters, and that hope is strengthened by the confident expectation that the natural resentment of such voters, provoked by the insult of being bribed and threatened, will induce them to vote as a unit against the plutocratic parasites who show what regard they have for them by treating them as would not treat serfs.

Do you wish your sons to have a fair chance in the world? then vote against the party of trusts. These monster corporations are crushing competition by buying out successful competitors, so as to enable themselves, by obtaining monopolies, to charge you what they please for what is necessary for you to have. By protection, under the plea of inability to compete with foreign manufacturers and cheap labor, they manufacture at a cost so small that they can, and do, send their products to the countries of these same foreigners and sell to them for less—sometimes far less than they sell to you; thus proving that their plea for protection is false. Strike them down on Tuesday and give your sons a fair field for their talents and skill, instead of making them employees of men who have more money. Let industry bring to each man its reward.

The real anarchists of this country, the plutocrats, by their attempted intimidations and arrogance and display of wealth, have so engendered and promoted the wrath of their poor fellow countrymen, that it has almost reached the boiling point; but they can't see what everybody else does, the inevitable end of the path they are pursuing. They are not as wise as their fellows who have invested their unearned money in foreign securities or have gone abroad to live. Indeed so strong is the animosity they have provoked against themselves, that even in the State of Pennsylvania, with its three hundred thousand republican majority, many democrats entertain hopes of greatly reducing that majority, and some even of destroying it entirely.

GENERAL WINSTON, who presided at a so-called business men's meeting in Chicago last night, and was appointed to a lucrative office by ex-President Cleveland, says Mr. Cleveland will vote for Mr. McKinley. Why, of course he will; and it will be perfectly natural for him to do so. Though the democrats took him from the "slums" of Buffalo, according to his new allies—and gave him the highest office in the land, he turned against them, when they refused to give him three terms, and, like mean human nature, nursed his wrath against them to keep it warm.

MR. BRYAN, at one of his late meetings, read to his audience two circulars, issued by the republicans, one addressed to Catholics, advising them to vote for McKinley because he is their friend, and the other, to the A. P. A.'s, advising them to vote for him because he agrees with them. But the opposition of the working men to the republican party, provoked by their assumptions, airs, insolent threats, and great that they have become alarmed, and don't hesitate to resort to any means by which they imagine they may effect their purpose.

So FLAGRANT is the corruptive use the republicans are making of money in the close States, that they have ceased their efforts to conceal that use, but attempt to explain and palliate it by the ridiculous assertion that the democrats are doing so too. As this is an open fight between the men with, and those without money, how the latter, who haven't enough to buy meat and bread, can have any with which to buy elections, is something that no fellow can find out.

RICH MR. Hanna calls poor Mr. Bryan a "fellow," which he imagines is a term of reproach. But Mr. Hanna never forgets that among the seventy-five million people in this country, the "fellow," as he calls them, outnumber the plutocrats a thousand to one, and that though some of them under stress of poverty may be bought to vote against their own "fellows," all of them can't be, at the same time.

MR. YERKES is an internal revenue collector, but, at the same time, the republican candidate for Governor of Kentucky, and has been devoting much of his time to electioneering and to conferences with President McKinley in Washington and Canton. During Mr. Cleveland's administration no democratic office holder dared to take any part in politics lest he would be removed for pernicious activity.

FRANCE refuses her assent to the English-German compact in respect of China, but Mr. McKinley agrees to it cheerfully. But it was only natural for him to do so, as the secret alliance he has made with Great Britain has not yet been broken, and allies, to be allies, must always agree with each other.

The attractions of China must be great indeed, when, with all the alleged cruelty the missionaries suffer in that country, they prefer its dangers to the safer and more fruitful fields of labor in their own country, and those who a short time ago fled from there are now hastening back.

There is nothing the republicans prize more than the alleged "dignity of labor." And yet they are conducting the present campaign upon a system by which labor may be degraded to the lowest stage by subjecting it to the debasing influences of threats and bribes.

FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.] People from Richmond here today say the Gazette was right when it spoke of that city as having lost its old-time Virginia characteristics and become a southern Boston, and allude to the fact that many of its prominent business men, who have before been Democrats, now don't hesitate to express their intention of voting the republican ticket next Tuesday.

If the republicans succeed next Tuesday, their settled determination, as understood here, is to reduce the Congressional and electoral representation of the South, either by infringing the Constitution and apportioning representatives according to the votes cast, and not to population, or by so changing the apportionment as to increase representation in the North and to decrease it in the South.

At democratic headquarters here today everything appears in a rosy hue, and it is said that the way in which Messrs. Hanna and Roosevelt are abusing personally, Mr. Bryan, proves that the straits they are in has made them desperate; and more significant still, is the fact that the republicans are already commencing to say that if they shall be defeated, it will be because of the unwise talk of the two men referred to.

The republicans here, or rather many of them, support the idea of the appointment of deputy U. S. marshals to supervise the election in Kentucky, and say that if that State shall go republican, Mr. Blackburn should not be admitted into the Senate.

Attorney General Montague, of Virginia, was here today on his return from Winchester, where he spoke yesterday. He says every thing is favorable to democratic success in his State.

While most of the democrats here are confident of Bryan's election, most of the republicans are sure that McKinley will be re-elected. Among the latter are many bankers and brokers, who laugh at what they term the preposterous idea of democratic success. But the democrats say the bankers only hear the talk of moneyed circles, and don't go where the poor people can be heard.

The railroad office here have reduced the rates to one fare for return tickets to all points in Virginia to voters in that State, and the Virginia democratic association of this city are now engaged in supplying such voters with certificates entitling them to such tickets. The association will send ex-Congressman Turner of New York, known as the "Iron Horse," to Richmond, to talk to the workingmen of that city. Mr. John Goode will also go from here to Richmond today to make a democratic speech.

Stocks had a declining tendency here today; wheat and cotton were weak and corn steady.

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES. The announcement of the population of the United States furnishes an opportunity for an effective illustration of the size of New York city. Leaving the State of New York out of consideration, only three States in the Union, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois, have a population larger than Greater New York. The city inhabitants constitute 4 1/2 per cent. of the total population of the country, or, in other words, one out of every twenty-five in the total of Americans is resident in New York. Those who advocate the creation of a new State to consist of the territory now known as New York city have a good argument in the latest census figures.

Leading physicians at Chicago declare that the drink habit is constantly on the increase with women in society. One said: "There is much more drunkenness among women than is dreamed of by most people. When a woman becomes a victim of alcoholism she becomes more depraved than the man victim. The increase has become greater among the wealthy classes and the younger social sets than among the lower strata of society."

Gov. Roosevelt had a hard time in Buffalo yesterday. He was attacked by some hoodlums who made his carriage a target for a volley of stones and mud. Through a squabble in the committee on arrangements 500 Rough Riders refused to act as his escort and went about hooting McKinley. Some of the language used by Senator Hanna referring to Mr. Bryan in his speeches yesterday was: "pronounce him a hypocrite and a demagogue. The most dangerous man in the republic. Nobody but a crank would think of voting for him. There is nothing left in this campaign but Bryan's mouth."

MARRIED AT MOTHER'S COFFIN.

Miss Edith M. Shook, of Hampden, was married to Mr. James E. Wynks Tuesday afternoon in the parlor of 278 Hickory avenue, Hampden, in which was a casket containing the body of the groom's mother, Mrs. Catharine Wynks, who had died about 10 hours before. Rev. George E. Hinesley, pastor of St. Luke's English Lutheran Church, Third and Chestnut avenues, performed the ceremony.

The marriage was in accordance with a dying request of Mrs. Wynks. The bride and groom had been engaged for some time and it was the desire of the mother of the groom to see them married. She had been ill for some weeks, but her condition did not become alarming until Monday night. When informed of her serious condition she asked that the marriage ceremony be performed immediately. It was then too late to secure a license, but all arrangements were made to have the ceremony take place the next day.

Mrs. Wynks died about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. Her last request before she was buried, and according to a license was secured and the young couple married at 3 o'clock that afternoon. Members of the immediate families of the bride and groom were the only witnesses.

Mrs. Wynks was 59 years old and a native of Carroll county, Maryland. She resided in Hampden for a number of years and is survived by three daughters and one son.—[Baltimore Sun.]

MRS. MACKAY IN AN ASYLUM.—Mrs. Katharine S. Mackay arrived in Washington yesterday from the home of her father, Col. George A. Porterfield, at Charlottesville, Va., where she was taken on Monday night. Immediately upon her arrival Mrs. Mackay was conveyed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane, where she will remain until tomorrow, when a judicial inquiry will be made in reference to her mental condition. She was accompanied on her trip from Charlottesville to Washington by her brother, Mr. Mackay's husband, Thomas J. Mackay, did not know that his wife would arrive in the city and was not at the station to meet her. Mrs. Mackay, however, inquired anxiously for her husband as soon as she reached the city. She refused to leave the train and had to be carried to the ambulance by officers.

MR. BRYAN IN OHIO.—William J. Bryan concluded his second tour of Ohio yesterday, and was given an enthusiastic welcome all the way from Toledo to Cincinnati. At every stop there were large crowds which cheered the Nebraska to the echo. Cincinnati was reached at 7 o'clock yesterday evening in time for the big night demonstration. The meeting last night at Music Hall was the largest so far of the campaign, overflowing from the great hall—which holds 7,000 when taxed to capacity—out into the streets until as many more thronged the thoroughfares of the vicinity.

THE REVISION OF THE CREED.—Presbyterian leaders now admit that the action of many of the presbyteries which have voted upon the question of revision of the creed has been so decisive that the special committee which propounded the questions will be compelled to report to the General Assembly that it ought to take up the matter of a revision. Of 123 presbyteries which voted on the subject, 87 favor some sort of revision, while 35 per cent. want the question of revision dismissed. Four presbyteries were undecided in their replies.

HE MARRIED FIVE ORPHANS.—Green Derrington, a farmer, and Mabel Reed were married at Poplar Bluff, Mo., yesterday. Miss Reed is the fifth wife of Derrington. Three of his former spouses died, and less than a month ago he secured a divorce from the fourth. In all his marriages Mr. Derrington has shown an apparent dislike to mothers-in-law by marrying orphans.

Miss Reed is 17 years old, while Derrington has passed his fifty-first birthday.

The paper concludes: "March for McKinley, and vote for Bryan. March for the trusts and smash them in the secret ballot box."

The matter of prosecuting John K. Cowen, President of the B. & O. R. R. for intimidation of voters, has been discussed by democratic leaders in Baltimore, and some action may be taken. Mr. Cowen had special trains last week to bring B. & O. employees to the city to attend a "bond money" meeting, over which he presided. Similar instructions have been sent to employees to attend another meeting Saturday night. Mr. Cowen has also made threats of cancelling orders for cars of Bryan. It was reported in New York that Gov. Chairman Vandiver this morning said: "Action against Mr. Cowen will be taken later on."

THE PORTNER BREWING COMPANY'S CAR PLANT.

The failure of the Robert Portner Brewing Company to make arrangements, or secure conditions, or purchase property by which they would have been enabled to erect a car shop and "build new refrigerators cars and repair their own cars," instead of placing a contract with the Allison Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia, for this work—taking away from Alexandria just so much money and a corresponding amount of enterprise, is, and will be, a source of regret to those who have noticed the expansion of this valuable adjunct to Alexandria's prosperity. That the local in Tuesday's Gazette giving information on this matter was a surprise, as well as regret, goes without saying, but it also proves that our city enterprise—the Robert Portner Brewing Company—does not believe with John K. Cowen that everything is going to the bow wows in case of Mr. Bryan's election, and that we will require just as much to wear and eat and will have just as many ways to earn a dime to purchase a bottle of Hoffmann under Mr. Bryan's four years' administration as we suppose we have had under President McKinley's.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Confessed and Attempted Suicide. New York, Nov. 1.—Charles F. Jones, the valet of millionaire Wm. Marsh Rice, who died under circumstances that indicated foul play, after making a will that turned his millions over to Lawyer Albert T. Patrick, has broken down, it is stated, and confessed. The nature of the confession has not been made public, but it is intimated that the valet told a startling story. Jones's confession, it is said, was obtained last night. It is stated that he demanded full immunity in return for his confession. It is understood that he did not get entire relief from punishment, tried to kill himself in his cell in the Tombs at 4 o'clock this morning. He stabbed himself in the jugular vein with a small nail knife. When found he was weak from loss of blood. Had the discovery of his condition been delayed half an hour more he would probably have bled to death. Jones was hastily removed to Bellevue Hospital where his wounds were dressed. The doctors think he will recover. The attempt at suicide by Jones, who was closely guarded by police, followed a confession of Jones to a plot to get possession of Rice's millions, has caused a sensation. Jones was arrested a few weeks ago with Albert T. Patrick, Rice's attorney, on a charge of forgery. The men, the day after Rice's death, had tried to cash two checks, one for $65,000, and the other for $25,000, drawn on Swanson & Sons, the millionaire's bankers. The checks were signed with the name of William M. Rice, but the bankers, made suspicious by some irregularity in the signatures, investigated before sending over the cash. They found that Rice had died rather suddenly the previous evening and reported the case to the police. The arrest of Patrick and Jones followed. It was found that Rice made a number of wills, the last one in favor of Patrick. Rice was an eccentric millionaire who lived the squirely life of a recluse. Jones was his sole attendant, and it is charged had great influence over him.

The Assistant District Attorney has given out a statement regarding the confession of Jones to the effect that Patrick, the lawyer, gave Mr. Rice some tablets of a crystal color, which the millionaire took daily for more than a week previous to his death. Jones said he had taken the tablets a few days before his death to demand all his papers and to say if Patrick did not give them up, he (Jones) would notify the authorities. Patrick called about 7 o'clock. A few minutes later I went to the door and Patrick asked me to take the tablets to him. He took a towel folded cone shape over his face. Patrick was holding it with his right hand on Mr. Rice's face. As soon as I saw the position of things I shut the door and went to the door. A little later Patrick came out and said: "He is dead; now, Jones, we must go to work and get hold of all of old man Rice's papers."

The Gould-Castellane Affair. Paris, Nov. 1.—The appointment by the court of George Gould as trustee for the estate of the Countess Castellane is the talk of Paris. As the court goes, Gould will have control of the countess's estate and as the count has not a cent in his own name it means that he will have to go to his American brother-in-law for his pocket money, and what is worse, will have to render account to Mr. Gould for the money he spends. It is likely that the expensive property purchased by the count will be sold. Count Boni's father is said to have declared that his son would not submit to Mr. Gould's interference in his affairs. According to rumor, the marquis is put out because the federal authorities for punishment. The lawyers came to this conclusion late yesterday. At his elbow will stand United States Marshal Henckel who will re-arrest him under federal warrant, for embezzlement.

Loss of Life Overestimated.

New York, Nov. 1.—The ruins left by the fire and explosions in Warren street Monday are still a smoldering mass. The hundreds of workmen who have been at work night and day clearing up the debris, had, by this morning, made a considerable impression upon the great task before them. Sections on the outskirts of the ruins have been cleared up but it will be many days before all the debris can be removed. So far, not a single body has been found. What were supposed to be fragments of bodies, picked up yesterday, turned out to be fused chemicals. The list of missing has now been reduced to about a dozen and, it is believed, this is about the number of persons who lost their lives in the fire.
